

passing the Americans with Disabilities Act and spearheading successful farm bills. But I take a very special pride in projects that have made a big difference in local communities across my State.

Today, I would like to give an accounting of my work with leaders and residents of Harrison County to build a legacy of a stronger local economy, better schools and educational opportunities, and a healthier, safer community.

Between 2001 and 2013, the creative leadership in your community has worked with me to secure funding in Harrison County worth over $3.6 million and successfully acquired financial assistance from programs I have fought hard to support, which have provided more than $6.8 million to the local economy.

Of course my favorite memory of working together has to be its successful use of several Main Street Iowa grants for facade restoration and other building renovations in downtown Woodbine, and redevelopment of the Moore's Block in Dunlap.

Among the highlights:

Main Street Iowa: One of the greatest challenges we face—in Iowa and all across America—is preserving the character and vitality of our small towns and rural communities. This is not just about economics. It is also about maintaining our identity as Iowans. Main Street Iowa helps preserve Iowa's heart and soul by providing funds to revitalize downtown business districts. This program has allowed towns like Woodbine and Dunlap to use that money to leverage other investments to jumpstart change and renewal. I am so pleased that Harrison County has earned $148,000 through this program. These grants build much more than buildings. They build up the spirit and morale of people in our small towns and local communities.

School grants: Every child in Iowa deserves to be educated in a classroom that is safe, accessible, and modern. That is why, for the past decade and a half, I have secured funding for the innovative Iowa Demonstration Construction Grant Program—better known among educators in Iowa as Harkin grants for public schools construction and renovation. Across 15 years, Harkin grants worth more than $132 million have helped school districts to fund a range of renovation and repair efforts—everything from updating fire safety systems to building new schools. In many cases, these Federal dollars have served as the needed incentive to leverage local public and private dollars, so it often has a tremendous multiplier effect within a school district. Over the years, Harrison County has received over $3.35 million in Harkin grants. Similarly, schools in Harrison County have received funds that I designated for Iowa Star Schools for technology totaling $20,000.

Agricultural and rural development: Because I grew up in a small town in rural Iowa, I have always been a loyal friend and fierce advocate for family farmers and rural communities. I have been a member of the House or Senate Agriculture Committee for 40 years—including more than 10 years as chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Across the decades, I have championed farm policies for Iowans that include effective farm income protection and commodity programs; strong, progressive conservation assistance for agricultural producers; renewable energy opportunities; and robust economic development in our rural communities. Since 1991, through various programs authorized through the farm bill, Harrison County has received more than $3.5 from a variety of farm bill programs.

Keeping Iowa communities safe: I also firmly believe that our first responders need to be appropriately trained and equipped, able to respond to both local emergencies and to statewide challenges such as, for instance, the methamphetamine epidemic. Since 2001, Harrison County's fire departments have received over $1.19 million for firefighter safety and operations equipment.

Disability Rights: Growing up, I loved and admired my brother Frank, who was deaf. But I was deeply disturbed by the discrimination and obstacles he faced every day. That is why I have always been a passionate advocate for full equality for people with disabilities. As the primary author of the Americans with Disabilities Act, ADA, and the ADA Amendments Act, I have had four guiding goals for our fellow citizens with disabilities: equal opportunity, full participation, independent living and economic self-sufficiency. Nearly a quarter century since passage of the ADA, I see remarkable changes in communities everywhere I go in Iowa—not just in curb cuts or closed captioned television, but in the full participation of people with disabilities in our society and economy, folks who at long last have the opportunity to contribute their talents and to be fully included. These changes have increased economic opportunities for all citizens of Harrison County, both those with and without disabilities. And they make us proud to be a part of a community and country that respects the worth and civil rights of all of our citizens.

This is at least a partial accounting of my work on behalf of Iowa, and specifically Harrison County, during my time in Congress. In every case, this work has been about partnerships, cooperation, and empowering folks at the State and local level, including in Harrison County, to fulfill their own dreams and initiatives. And, of course, this work is never complete. Even after I retire from the Senate, I have no intention of retiring from the fight for a better, fairer, richer Iowa. I will always be profoundly grateful for the opportunity to serve the people of Iowa as their Senator.●

TRIBUTE TO SUSAN ALLER-SCHILLING

● Mr. HELLER. Mr. President, today I wish to honor Major Susan Aller-Schilling, a devoted and history-making member of the Nevada Highway Patrol, NHP.

Major Aller-Schilling has served with Nevada's Department of Public Safety for more than 16 years. Rising to the rank of lieutenant before transferring to the NHP, Major Aller-Schilling is the first female trooper in the agency's history to achieve the ranking title of major.

Supporting Nevada's citizens through a tireless dedication to their safety, Major Aller-Schilling has served a vast majority of the State from Las Vegas to Reno, where she has diligently performed as an operations commander since last year. As a major, she will oversee more than 2,560 sworn and civilian personnel.

Today, the NHP boasts well over 300 commissioned officers, each dedicated to ensuring safe, economical, and enjoyable use of the highways. Protecting citizens and assisting law enforcement agencies throughout our State and the Nation are just a few of the services these servicemen selflessly provide.

Aligned with the NHP's mission of protecting safety, Major Aller-Schilling's loyalty and dedication to community well-being has been described as exceptional. Her example of hard work and dedication to a cause greater than herself is demonstrated by this elevation of her rank—the first of its kind. I am grateful for Major Aller-Schilling's character and the role model she is for our State.

I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring Major Aller-Schilling for her steadfast loyalty and dedication to the Great State of Nevada.●

BATTLE OF KENNESAW MOUNTAIN SESQUICENTENNIAL

● Mr. ISAKSON. Mr. President, today I wish to commemorate the sesquicentennial of Georgia's Battle of Kennesaw Mountain that took place on June 27, 1864, and was an important moment in the Civil War's Atlanta campaign.

The Civil War had been underway for more than 3 years when GEN William T. Sherman began his movement south of Chattanooga, TN. Sherman's troops moved south following the general path of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. By mid-June, both the Union and Confederate armies were in the vicinity of Kennesaw Mountain. Both sides had to struggle with a common enemy—rain—that continued for 2½ weeks. From June 4 through June 18, 1864, southern GEN Joseph E. Johnston surprised Sherman by defending a line running from Lost Mountain to Brushy Mountain. A series of attacks on this line forced Johnston to draw back to the Kennesaw line on June 19, 1864. Using Kennesaw Mountain as the anchor for
